1. Terms of Reference Rationale:

The recording of Wonnarua history of the Hunter Valley, North West of Newcastle, in New South Wales has been fraught with many misconceptions. From colonial times to the present non Indigenous researchers have virtually recorded by far the largest volume of Indigenous histories associated with Wonnarua people. As such, these writings have always been Eurocentric in nature to contemporary Anglo Celtic Australian perspectives.

The earlier recordings of Wonnarua people were often viewed with jaundiced eyes and quite often missing and misinterpreting traditional Wonnarua ways and while completely ignoring Wonnarua worldviews, with contemporary recordings having very little, if any, Wonnarua consultation.

In doing this, they failed to record the whole foundation of Wonnarua people's heritage and culture.

Wonnarua land loss meant diminish of Wonnarua language, story, song, music, dance, kinship relations, social order, foods, technology, flora and fauna, art, sites and history. Many early nineteenth century researchers who wrote of the culture of Wonnarua people never even visited the Hunter Valley and only relied on hearsay from local correspondences from people whose judgment of Wonnarua people at the time, would have been very questionable, to say the least.

To direct bloodline descendents of Wonnarua people, this represents a travesty of unjustified cultural genocide, paralleling that of many other Indigenous Nations in south eastern Australia today.

2. Terms of Reference Vision and Aims:

The primary purpose of the Cultural Reclamation Committee is to present achievable policy and programs in which to make significant conceptual advances into the reclamation of Wonnarua heritage and culture and to develop contemporary knowledge bases and understandings of Wonnarua history and lifestyle from a Wonnarua perspective, for future Wonnarua generations through.
